National Atlas of Hungary: Society

Hungarian Academy of Sciences, Research Centre for Astronomy and Earth Sciences, Hungary. 191 pages. ISBN 9789639545649. In English. 2021.

Volume 3 of the new Hungarian National Atlas focuses on Hungary's society, offering an overview of the spatial dynamics of the population and exploring historical roots. Several chapters analyze the interconnections and interactions between the human and natural environments (e.g., the human side of living conditions and quality of life, housing conditions and the municipal environment). The thematic maps inform about such diverse topics as fertility, live births out of wedlock, life expectancy, the main causes of death, resident foreigners, the cross-border migration of Hungarians, daily commuting abroad, ageing, marriage, divorce, cohabitation, ethno-linguistic structure, religiosity, educational level, unemployment, income inequalities, suburbanization, the types and dynamics of urban and rural settlements, the changing face of Budapest and its agglomeration, hospital care, social welfare, the first year of Covid-19, internet use, housing conditions, the housing market, road accidents and crime, and more. Four volumes are expected in this set, published out of order (volume 1 is not yet available).
